Your Majesty,

We, the undersigned, who were in pursuance of Section 52 of the Constitution of Lesotho appointed by Your Majesty as constituting a Constituency Delimitation Commission, with our humble duty to Your Majesty beg to submit the following report:-

1. Section 53(3) of the Constitution provides inter alia that whenever a census of the population has been held in pursuance of any law the Delimitation Commission may review the boundaries of the constituencies into which Lesotho is divided and alter such boundaries in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution to an extent which it considers desirable in consequence of that census.

2. A population census was held in 1966, i.e. after the last delimitation. The report on that census shows that although the total adult population figure on which the previous delimitation was based

/was a fair

It was a fair estimate of the population at that time, the estimated number of inhabitants of or above the age of twenty-one years allocated to the different constituencies in many cases no longer reflected the factual position. In some cases the census figures showed that the actual number of adult inhabitants for a particular constituency exceeded the number allocated for delimitation purposes by several thousands while in other constituencies the actual figures were considerably lower than the previous Commission's estimates. This was no doubt largely due to the fact that the 1965 Commission had to take the 1956 census figures as a basis for its estimates and probably did not have reliable information regarding population moves, especially to the towns, since that census. This Commission therefore came to the conclusion that a review of the constituency boundaries was justified, and indeed necessary, and decided to carry out such a review.

3. Section 53 of the Constitution provides that the 60 constituencies into which Lesotho is divided shall contain as nearly equal numbers of inhabitants of or above the age of twenty-one years as appears to the Commission to be reasonably practicable, but in terms of sub-section 2 of that Section the Commission is empowered to depart from that principle in order to take account of:-

- (a) the density of population, and in particular the need to ensure adequate representation representation of sparsely populated areas;

- (b) the means of communication;
- (c) geographical features;
- (d) community of interest; and
- (e) the boundaries of existing administrative areas.

The number of adult inhabitants of any constituency is however not to exceed or fall short of the population quota (which is the figure arrived at by dividing the total number of adult inhabitants of the whole of the country by 60) by more than 10%.

4. The Constitution does not contain a definition of the word inhabitant but the Commission accepted that, generally speaking, an inhabitant of a place is one who has his permanent home there although the signification of the word may of course vary according to the subject matter. In the context in which the word inhabitant is used in the Constitution the Commission is of the opinion that it includes those persons who, although temporarily outside Lesotho at any particular time for purposes of employment or any other purpose, retain their permanent homes in this country.

5. The 1966 census of the population from which in terms of Section 53(5) of the Constitution the number of inhabitants has to be ascertained showed a de jure adult population of 466,022. This included a considerable number of people temporarily absent from

Lesotho at the time, but according to the Commission's information the great majority of these absentees still had at that time their permanent homes in Lesotho and the Commission decided that they should be regarded as inhabitants for delimitation purposes. The number of persons who had died since the 1966 census could not be ascertained and the Commission was unable to obtain even a rough estimate of their number. It is, of course, also quite probable that at least some of the inhabitants who in 1966 were classed as absentees can no longer be regarded as inhabitants in the sense of having retained their permanent homes in Lesotho. On the other hand a number of inhabitants who in 1966 were under the age of twenty-one years have naturally in the meantime reached that age. In the absence of any additional appropriate information on aspects such as those mentioned above the Commission decided that the 1966 census figures of the de jure adult population would properly form the basis for its review.

6. Adopting the figure of 465,022 as the number of adult inhabitants the national "population quota" was found to be 7,767 which, with the permitted variation of ten per cent, allowed a maximum number of adult inhabitants in any constituency of 8,544 and a minimum of 6,990.

7. Soon after its first meeting the Commission publicised its intention to draw up a provisional delimitation plan and having done so to visit various administrative centres in order to give to all persons concerned an opportunity of making representations or stating their views. This programme was subsequently carried out. In announcing the programme interested persons and bodies were invited to submit written proposals and suggestions which they wished to have taken into account by the Commission in drawing up the provisional plan. A number of proposals were received and were duly considered by the Commission both when drawing up the provisional plan and when reaching its final conclusions.

8. Before the Commission was appointed the Government of Lesotho established machinery for a general registration of electors throughout the country and officers were also appointed by the Electoral Section with the objective of ascertaining names and situations of every village in the country. Every such village was given a number and its situation was, as far as was reasonably possible, depicted on maps which were made available to the Commission. The figures available of registered voters were also made known to the Commission and this was of help as indicating not unsubstantial population movements and a considerable extent of urbanisation developing in the neighbourhood of some of the administrative centres, especially Maseru.

9. In carrying out its review the Commission decided to adopt the method of scheduling villages which, according to available information, fall within a particular constituency. This, broadly speaking, was the method also adopted by the previous delimitation Commission save that the previous Commission in some cases worked on groups of unnamed villages which, we were informed, were sometimes spread over a wide area. This Commission had the advantage of having each known village identified and, as far as was reasonably possible, located and the Commission has included each such individual village in the Schedule which forms part of our Order. The Schedules with the names of the villages falling within each constituency were widely circulated when the provisional plan was announced and lay open for inspection. And at the various public meetings arranged by the Commission to hear representations on its provisional scheme the method of listing the villages was easily understood by members of the public who were present and this procedure appeared to be generally acceptable. These meetings were, on the whole, well attended and apart from general suggestions and recommendations a considerable number of apparently duplicate listings and incorrect placings of villages on the maps were brought to the Commission's attention. These aspects were all investigated and errors were corrected. The Commission sincerely hopes that most of the difficulties encountered after the last delimitation when, it is understood, some villages were actually situated many miles outside the described geographical boundaries of constituencies in which they were included for voting purposes, have been eliminated. Instances may however still occur of villages falling outside the described boundaries of the constituency under which they have been listed or of having been duplicated or even of villages not having been listed in the Schedules. To meet such eventualities the Commission has provided in its Order that where a village has, whether on account of a like or similar name or otherwise, been duplicated, and it is listed under more than one of the different constituencies or where a village is not so listed, such a village shall form part of the constituency within which it is in fact situated according to the geographical boundaries as described in our Order. Similarly it has been provided that should it be found that any village, or part thereof, the name of which is listed under a constituency, is situated outside the described geographical boundaries of that constituency, the boundary of that constituency as described shall be regarded as extended so as to include the whole of the boundary of the area occupied by such village. For the sake of convenience and for ease of reference the Commission, with the assistance of the Government Surveyor, has had the boundaries of the different constituencies delineated upon plastic-backed copies of 1/50,000 maps in separate sheets covering the whole of the country. These maps will be signed for purpose of identification by the members of the Commission and will be deposited for safe custody with the Chief Electoral Officer. These maps will be available for reference but in the event of any inconsistency between the boundaries as described in our Order and the boundaries delineated on the maps the description of the boundaries will prevail subject to what has been said above in regard to any inconsistency between the villages as listed and the boundaries as described.

10. At some of the public meetings it was urged upon us that the administrative boundaries as shown on the 1/50,000 maps are in fact wrong. It is quite impossible for the Commission to investigate this aspect and we have therefore provided in our Order that in the event of a dispute the district boundaries are, for constituency purposes, to be taken as delineated in the 1/50,000 signed maps referred to above.

11. As a result of alterations to the boundaries some of the old names of constituencies appear to have become inappropriate. For example, mountains or rivers after which constituencies were originally named in some instances no longer fall within the boundaries of such-named constituencies and changes of such names became desirable. The constituencies have also been renumbered and a list showing the numbers and names of the constituencies as delineated on the 1/50,000 maps is attached to this report being Annexure I.

12. There were representations to the effect that at the last general elections some people did not cast their votes on account of the long distances that they had to travel from their homes to their nearest polling station. We promised at the hearings that we would recommend, as we now do, that in the circumstances an adequate number of polling stations be provided.

/would recommend,

13. In all, nine public meetings were held. These meetings were well attended and the Commission wishes to record its appreciation for the able and dignified manner in which speakers made their representations, and the excellent behaviour of audiences at all meetings.

14. The Commission also wishes to record its thanks to all those who have assisted the Commission in the performance of its functions; particularly Mr. J. L. Fretorius, the Chief Electoral Officer, for the supply of information required on various aspects; Mr. D. Vermeulen, our Secretary, for his able assistance; Mr. J. M. Poka, who accompanied the Commission on its tours and inter alia assisted in the correction of errors in the placing of villages on maps; Mr. C. S. Choboloane, who acted as interpreter at all the meetings; the Ministry of Works (Roads Department), for supplying and compiling maps; the Bureau of Statistics, for supplying statistical information; the District Administrative Secretaries and the Magistrates of the various districts we visited, for making offices and Court rooms available and Mr. R. M. T. Phillips, Government Surveyor, who was responsible for delineating the constituency boundaries on the final maps and the written description of those boundaries.

17. Under and by virtue of the powers vested in us by the Constitution we have to-day made the Order set out in Annexure II to this Report and have placed the Order in the hands of the Government Printer for publication in the Gazette in pursuance of the provisions of the Constitution.

We have the honour to be,

Your Majesty's most obedient servants,

Where a small tributary joins the Tsehlanyane, where the boundary turns north and follows the watershed between the Ngoajane and Khatibe streams until it reaches the peak at the western end of the ridge one mile beyond Ntelle mountain, where it follows south west down a ridge joining the Khatibe stream just west of a large tributary entering from the south and one mile upstream from the village of Sera and thence down the Khatibe stream to a point $\frac{1}{4}$ mile above the confluence of the Khatibe and Ngoajane streams, west of Hlakametsa, where it turns north east along a ridge for $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles before joining the Ngoajane $\frac{3}{4}$ mile west of Topi village where a major tributary flows in from the South and turn down the Ngoajane to where it joins the Hololo and down the Hololo to the Caledon River.
